Section C | Application for Australian Permanent Residency¹

Do you intend on applying for Permanent Residency during the application cycles in 2019? Yes No

Applicants who receive permanent residency during the application year cannot be considered for an international place and instead must compete for a domestic place. If you are unsure of your residency status, please refer to our website: <http://www.meddent.uwa.edu.au/future-students/postgraduate/apply-professional/int-school-path>.

Please note if applicants commence in the Direct Pathway as an international student, and their residency status changes while they are in progress of their Bachelor degree, they will lose their direct pathway place in their postgraduate professional course. They would then need to re-apply competitively with all other domestic applicants through the graduate admission process. If residency status does not change until after commencement of the postgraduate professional course, there will be no guarantee of a domestic place in that course.
